Lisa Levasseur has quickly emerged as an artist in less than two years with no formal art education or background in painting. She has a range of work in different mediums and raw natural talent. She has become known as the creator of an innovative technique and unique type of abstract acrylic painting called Palette Art, which has been featured in exhibitions in New York, and Palm Desert, California.

Capturing light and dark through subtle shades, her portrait work resonates in the mind as if part of one's own dreams or memories. The intensity and realism of her animal paintings evoke a sense of their true nature. Levasseur brings color and movement together in classic and modern style to express a state of mind or mood in landscape paintings.

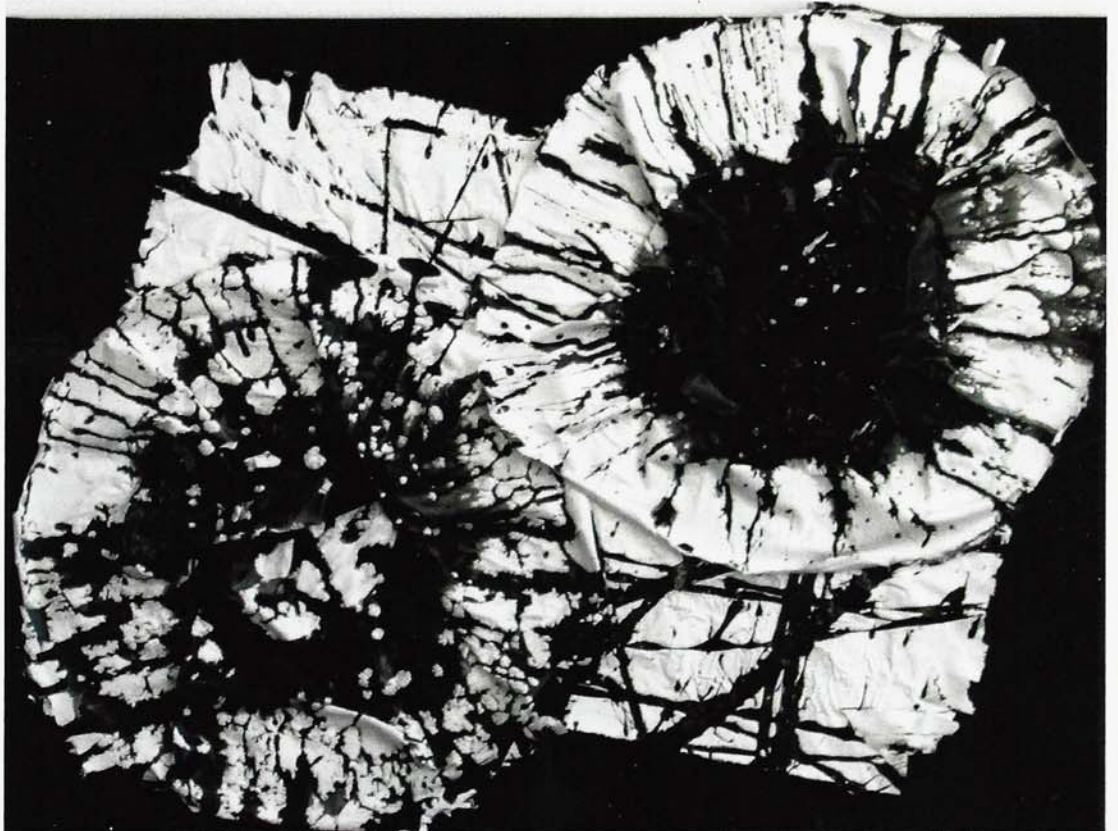

"I am moved by the actions, history and events that shape mankind, by nature or anything that elevates the spirit," says Levasseur. "It can be the simplest of things or the most horrifying; often it's experiencing the adventure or beauty nature has to offer, and it's definitely in the connection I have with animals. It translates into all this energy that I can express in a positive way through my artwork. I only hope it inspires the same passion, love and hope in others."

Levasseur runs Terracana Ranch Resort and lives somewhat divorced from society in Canada's rocky mountain wilderness. This gives her the opportunity to socialize with guests from all over the world and various walks of life. She also hosts art retreats and Rocky Mountain Art Tours through the national parks.
